To Whom It May Concern:

Please consider this to be a formal letter of recommendation for Nathan Sybrandy. In my sixteen years as an educator, I cannot think of a student who maintains a more positive attitude towards education, learning and life. Beyond maintaining a positive attitude, Nathan is more than academically qualified and ready for the rigors of college or university.

Nathan has been a student of mine in four classes now as both a Junior and Senior: U.S. History, American Government, Current World Problems, and Senior Seminar. Because of the amount of time I have spent with him, I feel uniquely qualified to discuss his readiness for the next challenge in his academic life. In short, he will excel next year. I am certain of this because he not only has the intelligence, skills and discipline necessary to succeed at college, but Nathan possesses a trait that is more important than almost all of those combined. Nathan is INTERESTED. It is a joy to teach Nathan because he has a genuine interest in learning. He asks tremendous questions, listens to peers and teachers alike, writes thought provoking papers and loves to discuss ideas. And he does all of this with a smile on his face.

Beyond academics, Nathan is a bit of a renaissance man. He is involved in many things and is unafraid of receiving criticism or teasing from his peers. He loves the guitar (in the classroom, I've enjoyed a presentation or two that involved him creating songs based on history and then playing these songs in the classroom), running (track and field his entire high school career), and helping others. His love of helping others convinced him to be a cheerleader for our school this year. While being a male cheerleader is increasingly rare, he has relished the role and looked past the teasing that he has received to make our school a better place. Besides helping others in school, Nathan is very involved religiously in our community. He is a bible study leader (leading young men every Sunday evening in a discussion on a verse of his choosing) and a youth group worship leader. As you can see, Nathan is interested in a variety of subjects and I can tell you that he attacks all of them with a positive attitude that is infectious.

If you are at all in doubt that Nathan is deserving of this scholarship, I hope you get the chance to meet him. I guarantee that you will come away from the meeting with a smile on your face, having met a young man that will make you feel good about the future of our communities. He will engage you in a terrific conversation and you will feel as if you are talking with someone already well on his way to a college degree. However, if you do have further questions and cannot meet with him, please do not hesitate to contact me: bhazelwood@lc.k12.wa.us (360) 466-3173
