

Guidelines to Using Old Index to Field Notes

This file consists of a compilation of several indexes to the Public Works field notes. They largely cover work completed from 1914 through 1978. The purpose of this index is to enable the user to locate the field notes associated with a particular project.

This index includes:

- Index to Field Notes by Road Name
- Index to Field Notes by Road Number
- Index to Field Notes by Township and Range
- Cross Reference of Notes File No. To Current Road Packets
- Index to Field Notes by Subdivisions
- Index to Field Notes by Gravel Pits
- Index to Field Notes by Ditches and Dikes
- Index to Field Notes by Rivers and Ferries
- Index to Field Notes by Bridges and Culverts
- Index to Field Notes by Bench Marks
- Index to Field Notes by Miscellaneous
- Index to Field Notes by File Number

Indexes may be navigated by using the PDF bookmarks.

The information in these indexes includes road number and name, a project description, date, section, township, range, notes file number, tracing file number and hardshell file number.

The notes file number for a project may be looked up in the cross reference section of this file to locate its current road packet number.

Unfortunately, tracing and hardshell file numbers are not cross referenced at this time. Most of the hardshells have been scanned and indexed into the Public Works Records Database. These hardshells can be located by road name and number, and section information on the Skagit County intranet. Hard copy indexes of this database are located in the bookshelf in the records vault.

You can do a text search of this file by clicking on the binocular icon near the top of the window. This will open a search window. Type in the word or phrase you wish to find and hit search. It usually works best to limit your search to a single word. A summary of what is found will be in the results box. By clicking on the various results you can move directly to that location. The search results for this document are of limited value as much of it is handwritten.

If you have any questions about using this index or suggestions or corrections please contact Keith Luna (3106) in the records vault.
